THE TRUTH SOMETIMES NOT FOUND OUT UNTIL TOO LATE.

SUCH is often the case in regard to persons taking medicine. They are induced by plausible reasoning, false representation and doctrines, to employ medicines that, so far from being adapted to their disease or sickness, absolutely increase the symptoms, destroy the constitution, rack the whole system, and bring on a gradual decline, terminating in death; previous to the fatal termination, however, (but unfortunately too late,) the truth is found out that the pills, mixtures, &c. they have been taking were composed of the most powerful and dangerous ingredients, prepared too by persons knowing nothing of disease or the nature of the medicines they recommended, depending altogether upon the "general doctrine of such impostors," that their medicines will "kill or cure." Be advised, then, if you find it necessary to take some medicine for purifying the blood and cleansing the bowels, to take nothing but Dr. Leidy's justly and deservedly celebrated SARSAPARILLA BLOOD PILLS, the only pills containing Sarsaparilla in their composition—the safest and best as well as the most effective that can be taken. Old and young, at all times, without regard to weather, may take them without fear of taking cold, and without restraint from occupation or usual course of living. Upwards of 1,000 certificates have been published, various times, of their efficacy. More than 100,000 boxes have been sold in Philadelphia in twelve months. These facts go to prove their value, or so many never would be sold in so short a time, or in a place where they are manufactured; this, however, arises in part from the fact that the manufacturer of them (Dr. Leidy) is well known at home as a regular physician and apothecary, knowing the true nature of diseases and of the medicines he recommends, attested by the most celebrated physicians, among whom are Dr. Nathaniel Chapman, Dr. Wm. Gibson, Dr. W. E. Horner, Dr. Samuel Jackson, Dr. Robert Hare, Dr. P. S. Physic, Dr. T. C. James, Dr. W. P. Dewees, Dr. J. Redman Cox, Rev. W. H. Delancy, Robert Adrian, L.L.D., &c. &c.

Orders for Dr. Leidy's BLOOD PILLS are daily received from the North, South, East, and West, and the most flattering accounts, from every direction, of their unparalleled success. A single box (25 cents) may save as many dollars, if taken in time, instead of the dangerous medicines now forced on the public, and by taking which persons so often find it necessary at last to take Dr. Leidy's Blood Pills, to counteract their injurious consequences.

They are prepared only, and sold Wholesale and Retail, at Dr. Leidy's Health Emporium, No. 191, North Second street, below Vine street, Philadelphia. And by CHARLES STOTT,
Agent for the District.

CLOTHING AND FURNISHING ARTICLES.
TWENTY-FIVE PER CENT. BELOW NEW YORK AND BOSTON PRICES.—I have just returned from New York with a splendid assortment of Cloths, Cassimeres and Vestings, Gambroons, Gingham, Tweeds, Dradilla, Neopolitan Twills, figured and plain Satin Vestings, large assortment of French goods, with a good stock of fine Shirts, Collars, Bosoms, Scarfs, Stocks, Gloves, Suspenders, Handkerchiefs, Socks, &c.
The whole of the above goods have been purchased for cash in the New York market with great care, and having had twenty-five years experience, I flatter myself they are purchased equal, if not far lower, than any goods brought to this market.
I have now made a large assortment of Summer Clothing of the most approved styles, and still continue to make up.
Also, I will make clothes to order, and warrant them to fit, for the same prices.

MISCELLANEOUS.

THE OLD ASHLAND TREE.

BY EZEKIEL BACON.

TUNE—"The brave old Oak."

A song for the sage, the brave old Sage,
We have known and honored him long;
While fame and renown have encircled his crown,
With garlands enduring and strong.
There was fear in his frown, when his eye looked down
On the host who envied his way;
And he rose in his might, midst storms of the night,
And held the fierce foemen at bay.
Let us sing of the Sage, the brave old Sage,
Who stands in his glory alone!
And still stands he, as the firm oak tree,
When Lindenwold saplings are gone.

O'er the year of his youth, shone honor and
As his star ascended the sky; [truth,
It still with bright beams round the horizon gleams,
As bursts its clear light from on high.
We well knew the day, when he moved on his way,
With patriots and sages of yore
Now gone to their rest, in the land of the blest,
And we walk in their shadows no more.
Still we sing of the Sage, the Ashland Sage,
Yet standing unscathed and alone;
And long stand he, the storm beaten tree,
When the time-worn forest is gone!

As the cedar's strong hold, he struck his root
When sounded the clarion of war
When faction was rife, the world rent with strife,
And invasion came from afar;
Our barriers of clay held Britons at bay,
With Madison firm at the helm:
So now for the right, we rise in Whig might,
And hordes of fall faction o'erwhelm.
Then a song for the Sage, the time honored Sage
Yet towering in fame and renown;
There long shall he stand, the pride of the land,
Still shining as ever he shone.

ANTWERP.

As many hundreds of thousands of English visit this city, (I have met at least a hundred of them in this half hour walking the streets, guide-book in hand,) and as the ubiquitous Murray has already depicted the place, there is no need to enter into a long description of it, its neatness, its beauty, and its still antique splendor. The tall, pale houses have many of them crimped gables, that look like Queen Elizabeth's ruffs. There are as many people in the streets as in London at three o'clock in the morning. The market women wear bonnets of a flower-pot shape, and have shining brazen milk-pots, which are delightful to the eye of a painter. Along the quays of the lazy Scheldt are innumerable good-natured groups of beer-drinkers, (small beer is the most good-natured drink in the world;) along the barriers outside of the town, and by the glistening canals are more beer shops and more beer-drinkers. The city is defended by the queerest fort military. The chief traffic is between the hotels and the railroad. The hotels give wonderful good dinners, and especially at the Grand Laboureur may be mentioned a peculiar tart, which is the best of all tarts that ever a man ate since he was ten years old. A moonlight walk is delightful. At ten o'clock the whole city is quiet, and so little changed does it seem to be, that you may walk back three hundred years into time, and fancy yourself a majestic Spaniard, or an oppressed and patriotic Dutchman at your leisure.—Timarsh: Fraser.

VENICE.

This city is undergoing the most extensive improvements. The old palaces are thoroughly repaired, and new ones built in every direction. Houses, whole streets are raising their heads, on the borders of the smaller canals, which are being filled up; the bridge across the Lagunes is progressing uninterruptedly; the "Ponte delle Pagine" has been enlarged to double its former size; the "Ponte di ca di Dio" is being rebuilt. A new project is on foot for opening the "Sfondo" of the old "Procurati"; another for ornamenting the base of the Campanile of St. Mark's, removing all the miserable little wooden shops that now encumber it; a magnificent hotel is to be erected on the "Riva degli Schiavoni," supplying a long-needed decoration for this noble promenade. Mechanics' schools are in active operation, and the population, instead of carrying on a sombre and apathetic existence, in hourly dread of those graves for the weary, the Piombi above, or the Pozzi below them, enlivened only by collecting in groups on the marble squares, to listen, with ears intent and eyes glistening, while some talented demagogue recites, "Erminia in tanto fra le ombrose piante," &c., are engaged very actively in the prosaic occupation of making money.—They would, every man of them, leave Tasso for a tester. There is every appearance of healthy improvement in this ancient city.
Foreign Quarterly Review.

CONVERSATION—ANECDOTE.

I shall not repeat here what I formerly said in praise of conversation, though the subject reminds me of a trifling adventure which lately befell the distinguished member of a university, who maintained that he had principally acquired his knowledge by conversation, and always declared that there was no man from whom some information might not be gained. My own opinion would, rather, perhaps, be in favor of female conversation, as I am inclined to believe ladies the best instructors. I can safely say, at least, "I learned the little that I know from them." This, however, has nothing to do with the adventure of the learned professor, to which we must return. Our friend, finding himself one day tele-a-tele in a mail coach with a sober, sedate, and respectable looking man, determined at once to make the most of him, and to learn as much from his fellow traveller as the latter might be able to teach.

They were no sooner fairly started, therefore, than the professor commenced with the usual introductory subject of the weather. Receiving only polite monosyllabic replies, he went over all the other topics most generally resorted to on such occasions, the appearance of the country, the crops, prospect of the harvest, but all with no better result, the sedate-looking man only assenting to whatever the man of learning advanced. Not to be driven from his favorite theory, the professor went, at last, more directly to work, saying, "Pray, sir, is there any subject on which you would be willing to converse?" "Try me on leather, and I am your man," was the reply of the vis-a-vis, a stout, honest carrier, as chance would have it.—Fraser's Mag.

ESCAPE IN SPITE OF PRUSSIAN STRICTNESS.

The free city of Frankfort, which in its capacity of a free city, is garrisoned by an Austrian and a Prussian regiment, had been laid under contribution during the spring fair by a most expert pick-pocket, whom the police had endeavored in vain to detect and capture. The fair was nearly at an end; and in order that the thief might not escape, the sentries at the gates were directed to allow no man to leave the town without sending him to the guard house to have his passport examined, and to see if his height, features, and appearance corresponded with the description on the paper. This order given, the authorities did not trouble their heads any more about the matter, feeling quite certain that the offender could not escape. On the other hand, the unfortunate thief felt very uncomfortable. Nature had endowed him with rather a remarkable physiognomy, and it was difficult to find a passport to fit him unless it were made on purpose; so that out of five or six which he had in his possession not one would do. At last he made up his mind to walk out of town without a passport, as if he were one of the town's people going out for a stroll. He accordingly took a cane in his hand, and, lounging along with an affectation of great indifference, approached a gate at which the Austrians were on guard. But the sentry had his orders, and when the stranger drew near, "Who goes there?" he vociferated. "A friend," answered the thief. "Advance, friend!" said the sentry with a significant rattle of his musket; a sort of intimation that non-compliance might be rewarded by a bullet. The thief walked up to the soldier. "Your passport," demanded the latter. "My passport!" repeated the thief, in a tone of infinite astonishment, "I have none." "All the better for you," said the sentry, shouldering his musket. "If you had had one, I should have been obliged to send you into the guard house to have it examined, and that would have detained you a good half hour. But since you have no passport you can't show one, so you may pass." And the intelligent warrior recommenced his monstrous promenade; while the thief, profiting by his obliging permission, walked out of the town.—Rhine and the Rhinelanders, by M. Dumas.
